

Dillard President Dr. Walter Kimbrough looks back on his first year at the university and shares some insights on the job done, and the future for Dillard.

"The continuing revival, Kimbrough said, is a multifaceted process that will involve increasing efficiency; determining how big Dillard should be; touting the more-celebrated disciplines, such as nursing and physics; and enhancing the reputation of closeness and mutual support for which historically black colleges like Dillard have been renowned."
